

dig In!

The Poe Center is excited to be continuing the tradition of the Dig In! conference, previously hosted by Advocates for Health in Action. Dig In! is an educational event focused on school, community, and childcare gardening, as well as urban agriculture in Wake County. This year the event will be held on March 28th, 2020 at the Poe Center for Health Education.

This event is marketed throughout the Triangle and draws over 200 leaders and community members. Together, they learn how edible gardens and urban agriculture initiatives increase healthy food access in neighborhoods, workplaces, faith communities, schools, and child care centers-- just about anywhere people come together.

Dig In! provides education, resources and networking to increase the impact of these community groups. To promote the continued wellbeing of the community, we are asking for your sponsorship to support the Dig In! conference. Sponsors are recognized with a variety of benefits based on sponsorship level. Promotion reaches hundreds of people in the Triangle through electronic and print outreach. Please join us by becoming a sponsor today.
